

publication cover

Publications should follow a cover template for monographs, journals, and textbooks. Each will have its own visual template — varying only slightly for its different editions. This institution branding implements the “bar” design in various and distinctive formats.

The book cover includes both the front and reverse sides as well as the spine. The side borders (front and reverse), spine, and logotype are standard parts and must appear in all books and journals. All other elements (cover art, title and author, and blurbs) may change as necessary.
